What is Inside Look and when does it take place?

We're excited to invite students graduating later than August 2021, studying computer science or a related subject to apply for Inside Look. This year, we're pleased to announce that we'll be hosting Inside Look Goes Digital on 27th & 28th August. Selected attendees will be invited to join an immersive two-day virtual program, including tech talks, panels, technical interview practice, fun social activities, and — in true Google fashion — the chance to get your hands on some Google freebies, delivered directly to you at home!

While we are unable to host every applicant at Inside Look Goes Digital, we'll also be holding Inside Look: YouTube Live on 21st September, where all applicants will be invited to hear from Google engineers on how they build products at scale, plus top tips from our hiring team.

The Inside Look program is committed to supporting diversity at Google and the tech industry as a whole. Students who are members of any group that has been historically underrepresented in the tech industry are encouraged to apply!
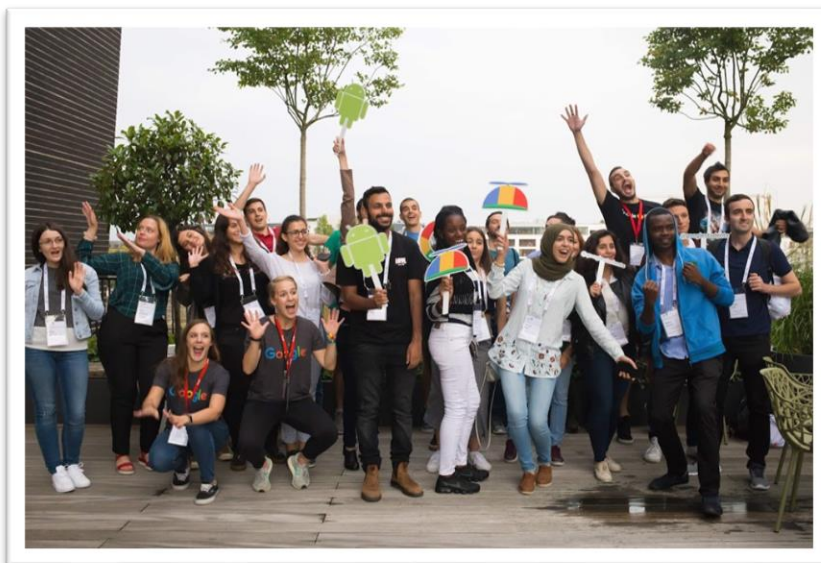

Sounds great! How do I apply?
Click here to apply now, including an up-to-date CV.
Applications are open until 23:59 BST on 1st June.

Wait, what if I don't have an updated CV?
No problem! We want to give you the best possible chance of success when applying for this competitive program, so we've recorded - from our homes - a video guide to writing a great CV.   We know it's hard to convey all the things you're proud of in a concise way, so we're here to help!

Many thanks, Google University Programs Team
